

For immediate release:
June 18, 2020

South Carolina ETV to honor 11 women leaders in second year of 'Women Vision SC' initiative

Network will recognize honorees and centennial of women gaining right to vote in one-hour television program on July 2

COLUMBIA, S.C. – South Carolina ETV (SCETV) today announced the return of its “Women Vision SC” initiative, which is recognizing 11 women leaders from across the state in a television program airing July 2 at 8:30 p.m. Made possible in part with support from BlueCross BlueShield of South Carolina, the one hour special, entitled, “Women Vision SC: Finding Our Voice,” will profile the 11 honorees, telling their stories and asking about their vision, values and the 100th anniversary of women gaining the right to vote.

Executive produced by Linda O’Byron, “Women Vision SC” is an initiative that focuses on issues affecting women throughout the state and nation and serves as a platform to highlight trailblazing South Carolina women that have made an impact. In 2019, the initiative’s inaugural year, 11 women of vision were selected and recognized.

SCETV kicked off the second year of “Women Vision SC” last summer by requesting that its viewers and listeners once again nominate women of vision. In all, 90 nominations were submitted, and a panel of community leaders narrowed the field to 11. Including women from government, business, public service, health care and the law, these are the 11 honorees:

- Deborah Blalock: A longtime mental health advocate and administrator, she was the executive director of the Charleston/Dorchester Mental Health Center before becoming a deputy director at the S.C. Department of Mental Health.
- M. Malissa Burnette: She is an award-winning attorney and advocate for equal rights for all. She waged a successful legal battle to change the rules and allow women to attend The Citadel.
- Dr. Shaniece Criss: She is an assistant professor of Health Science at Furman University and a member of the Travelers Rest City Council.
- Keisha Hawes: She became the first American Heart Association national spokesperson from the state of South Carolina after suffering a heart attack at the age of 31.
- Cathy Hughes: She oversees seven newspapers in seven states from her office in South Carolina. Among them is The Times and Democrat based in Orangeburg.
- Tameika Isaac Devine: As the first African American female to serve on Columbia’s City Council, she is a founding partner in her law firm and author of “Think Like a CEO, Act Like a Mom.”
- Lou Kennedy: President, CEO and owner of Nephron Pharmaceuticals Corporation, she helped establish the Kennedy Pharmacy Innovation Center in conjunction with the USC School of Pharmacy.
- T. Lilly Little Water: She is a volunteer community organizer, having conducted social justice programs in South Carolina for nearly three decades. She also serves as CEO of the South Carolina Indian Affairs Commission.
- Darla Moore: A financial wizard who attended the University of South Carolina, studying political science before receiving her MBA from George Washington University. She became one of the world’s most successful business leaders. USC’s Darla Moore School of Business was the first business school in the U.S. to be named after a woman.
- Betty Jo Rhea: She served as the mayor of Rock Hill for 12 years and was instrumental in establishing the city as a national sports tourism destination.
- Ann Timberlake: One of South Carolina’s leading conservational and environmental advocates, she founded the Conservation Voters of South Carolina.

Images of each of the honorees can be accessed by clicking on the hyperlinks above or by viewing this album gallery on the South Carolina ETV flickr page.

In 2019, SCETV recognized the first class of “Women Vision SC” honorees with an event at the network’s telecommunications center in Columbia. Because of social distancing concerns as a result of the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic, the agency will instead hold a virtual event this year. Taking place Wednesday, June 24 at 6:30 p.m., the event will feature a virtual awards presentation and will give participants an abbreviated sneak peek at the July 2 television special. Those that would like to register to attend can do so via Eventbrite by clicking here. Attendance is subject to availability as space is limited.

In addition to the one-hour television special, segments featuring each of the honorees will also air on SCETV’s weekly magazine series, “Palmetto Scene,” in September, October and November. And S.C. Public Radio will feature brief segments on each of the honorees Mondays in July and August during “Morning Edition” and “All Things Considered.” These segments will air 5:45 a.m., 7:45 a.m. and 5:44 p.m. Longer-form audio interviews are also being created as podcasts for SouthCarolinaPublicRadio.org.

Segments featuring each of the honorees are also be archived for students and educators on Knowitall.org and other educational portals. In addition, lesson plans are being developed for teacher modules.

For more on “Women Vision SC,” visit www.scetv.org/womenvisionsc.

QUOTES:

“Now more than ever, an initiative like ‘Women Vision SC’ is critical. Promoting hope and inspiration, this year’s group of honorees is a testament to the strength of diversity. From varying backgrounds and career fields and residing in all corners of the state, these 11 women have made a remarkable impact on South Carolina, and it’s our privilege to tell their stories.” – SCETV President and CEO Anthony Padgett

“It is our hope that storytelling around these women will inspire viewers and listeners from all walks of life, representing diverse communities from around the state.” – “Women Vision SC” Executive Producer Linda O’Byron

FIVE FAST FACTS:

- For the second year in a row, SCETV will honor 11 women of vision from across South Carolina with a one-hour television special, entitled “Women Vision SC: Finding Our Voice.”
- Made possible in part with support from BlueCross BlueShield of South Carolina, “Women Vision SC: Finding Our Voice will premiere on SCETV July 2 at 8:30 p.m.
- SCETV will hold a virtual event on Wednesday, June 24 at 6:30 p.m. to present awards to this year’s honorees and to give participants an abbreviated sneak peek at the July 2 television special. Those looking to participate can register here. Attendance is subject to availability as space is limited.
- In addition to the one-hour television special, segments focused on each of the honorees will be featured on upcoming episodes of “Palmetto Scene,” as well as on S.C. Public Radio’s “All Things Considered” and “Morning Edition.”
- Segments featuring each of the honorees are also be archived for students and educators on Knowitall.org and other educational portals.

About South Carolina ETV and Public Radio

South Carolina ETV (SCETV) is the state’s public educational broadcasting network. Using television, radio and diverse digital properties, SCETV’s mission is to enrich lives by educating children, informing and connecting citizens, celebrating our culture and environment and instilling the joy of learning. In addition to airing local programs, such as “Carolina Classrooms,” “Making it Grow,” “Palmetto Scene” and “This Week in South Carolina,” SCETV also presents multiple programs to regional and national audiences, including “Expeditions,” “Reconnecting Roots,” “Reel South,” “Somewhere South,” “Yoga in Practice” and “Live from Charleston Music Hall.” In addition, SC Public Radio produces the national radio production, “Chamber Music from Spoleto Festival USA.”

Media Contacts:

Jeremy Cauthen

jcauthen@scetv.org

803-737-3433