

Carolyn Bishop-McLeod

Sumter, SC

Originally from Charleston, Carolyn holds a BA from Clemson University a Master's Degree in Social Work from the University of South Carolina. Retired after a 30 year career in social work serving children and the elderly, she resides in Sumter with her husband, Glenn.

She is a Master Gardener, wine enthusiast, world traveler and Community volunteer. She is Past Governor of the SC District of Pilot International and although she holds degrees from both Clemson & USC, she declares that her "blood runneth orange."

An ETV supporter since 1976, Carolyn listens exclusively to ETV Radio unless there is a Clemson football game on TV. She says, "All my waking hours are accompanied by ETV Radio...from the Morning Edition radio alarm to winding down the day with streaming jazz." Her favorite programs include: Making It Grow, Whad'ya Know, People's Pharmacy, Wait, Wait Don't Tell Me, On Point, Your Day, Weekend Edition and The World Café.

She supports ETV and ETV Radio because "The ethics and standards maintained by ETV Radio, NPR and all affiliated entities allows me to have total confidence in the information that I am receiving over the airways. ETV Radio is clear, unbiased and without an ideological slant."

Carolyn describes ETV as "a shining star in our state. From the reporting of Philip Reeves, to the commentary of Scott Simon, to the music of Spoleto and on, my life is enriched daily with the news, creativity, humor and the beautiful music of the entire world-brought to me by ETV Radio." Carolyn, a President's Society member and a Legacy Society member, says that including the ETV Endowment in her estate is a way for her to express her gratitude. "A South Carolina without ETV Radio is unthinkable. A legacy gift is a practical and effective way to ensure the longevity of this critical resource."
